

KARMA

Title: Karma

Genre: Psychological / Supernatural / Coming-of-Age / Slice of Life

High Concept

Karma follows Kalyani, a 16-year-old alien girl born from some of the most dangerous and destructive beings in existence - Hoshikai. Despite her origins, she is gentle, curious, and deeply fascinated by human kindness. Sent to Earth, she attempts to live as a normal high school student while learning what it truly means to be "good."

However, her overwhelming power, her lack of understanding of human emotion, and the looming influence of her villainous dad constantly threaten to pull her away from the life she is trying to build.

Core Theme

The story explores the question:

"Can someone born from evil choose to become good?"

It also examines:

1. Identity vs. origin
2. The nature of morality
3. The complexity of human emotions
4. The idea that kindness is a choice, not an instinct

Main Character: Kalyani

Kalyani is a powerful alien with god-like abilities - the physical manifestation of Karma, yet she behaves like an innocent and curious teenager. She struggles to understand human behavior and often takes things literally, leading to both comedic and dangerous situations.

Despite her immense strength, she is emotionally inexperienced. She studies kindness through observation; often using media like children's shows to understand concepts such as friendship, empathy, and compassion.

Her internal conflict revolves around her fear that her origins define her:

If she was born from monsters, can she ever truly be good?

Antagonistic Forces

Kalyani's parents are powerful, feared beings who embody destruction, control, and superiority. They view humanity as insignificant and see Kalyani's kindness as a flaw.

Rather than directly attacking, they psychologically challenge her beliefs:

1. Encouraging her to embrace her power
2. Questioning her attachment to humans
3. Forcing her into situations that test her morality

They represent the life she was meant to live: and the person she refuses to become.

Setting

The story takes place in a modern-day high school on Earth, contrasted with an underlying supernatural layer. While the surface appears normal, hidden forces and organizations begin to notice Kalyani's presence.

This duality allows the story to balance everyday teenage life with high-stakes, otherworldly conflict.

Plot Overview

Act 1: Adjustment

Kalyani arrives on Earth and begins attending school. She attempts to imitate normal human behavior but frequently misinterprets situations due to her lack of emotional understanding. Her attempts to "help" others often lead to unintended consequences.

Act 2: Understanding

As she forms friendships, Kalyani begins to understand empathy and emotional nuance. However, her parents begin to interfere, and society slowly starts to fear her. A major incident forces her to confront the consequences of her power.

Act 3: Choice

Kalyani is faced with a defining decision: embrace her origins and her overwhelming power, or reject them in favor of protecting the fragile world she has come to care about. She ultimately chooses her own path, proving that identity is defined by choice, not birth.

Tone and Style

Karma blends lighthearted, slice-of-life moments with darker psychological and philosophical themes. The story shifts between:

1. Wholesome and comedic school interactions
2. Introspective and emotional character development
3. Intense, unsettling displays of power

This contrast highlights Kalyani's dual nature: both gentle and terrifying.

Target Audience

Teenagers and young adults, particularly readers who enjoy character-driven stories with emotional depth, moral dilemmas, and supernatural elements.

Unique Selling Point

The story stands out by presenting an overpowered protagonist not as a hero or villain, but as someone learning morality from scratch. Instead of focusing on defeating enemies, the narrative centers on internal growth, emotional understanding, and the struggle to choose kindness in a world that expects otherwise.

Conclusion

Karma is a coming-of-age story about identity, choice, and humanity. Through Kalyani's journey, it challenges the idea that one's origins determine their destiny, emphasizing instead that being "good" is a decision made over and over again.

Extras + Plot

Backstory

Long before the events of the story, there existed a powerful cosmic bloodline known as the Hoshikai, beings associated with stars, celestial energy, and destruction on a scale beyond human understanding. Though worshipped in some civilizations as gods, they were feared in others as disasters in living form. Among them, one name was spoken with particular dread:

En, the Fallen Star.

En was once seen as one of the most powerful of his kind, but over time he came to reject all restraint, compassion, and order. He believed power itself was the only truth, and that weaker beings existed only to be ruled, broken, or erased. His fall from grace transformed him into a symbol of calamity, and his title, “The Fallen Star,” became synonymous with ruin.

Kalyani is born from this terrifying lineage. As En’s daughter, she inherits a vast and nearly immeasurable amount of power. However, unlike her father, Kalyani does not possess his cruelty. Instead, she is curious, gentle, and deeply fascinated by life, especially the emotional complexity of humans. This difference makes her an anomaly in her own bloodline.

At some point before the main story begins, Kalyani is separated from En and sent to Earth, through and because of her own will and curiosity. As she enters her teenage years, she begins trying to understand humanity by living among them as an ordinary high school girl.

The central conflict of the story begins when Kalyani discovers that her kindness does not erase the destructive power inside her. At the same time, fragments of her father’s legacy begin resurfacing through flashbacks, hidden history, and those who still fear the Hoshikai. Kalyani is forced to confront the question at the heart of the story:

If she was born from a monster, can she still choose to become something else?

Power System / Kalyani's Abilities

Kalyani is essentially godlike, her abilities do not feel like a traditional “magic system” with strict spell rules. Instead, her powers are innate, cosmic, and emotionally tied. The tension comes less from “can she do this?” and more from should she, what will it cost emotionally, and what happens if she loses control.

Nature of Her Power

Kalyani's abilities come from her Hoshikai bloodline. Their power is tied to celestial force, destruction, and reality distortion. Humans would interpret this as supernatural, divine, or apocalyptic.

Core Ability Concept

Kalyani does not “cast” powers like a normal fantasy character. Instead, she wills reality to shift.

This can include:

1. overwhelming physical strength
2. near invulnerability
3. flight or levitation
4. energy projection
5. accelerated healing
6. spatial distortion
7. instinctive defense reactions
8. destructive bursts tied to emotion
9. heightened perception

Basic God-Ability Categories

1. Celestial Force

Kalyani can manipulate star-like energy, often appearing as glowing light, heat, pressure, or radiant destructive force. This is her most visibly “inhuman” power.

2. Instinctive Protection

When threatened, her body may react before she consciously does. This makes her dangerous even when she has no intention of harming anyone.

Example:

1. catching projectiles without looking
2. automatically creating barriers
3. releasing shockwaves when startled

3. Emotional Manifestation

Her powers become unstable when she is overwhelmed. Fear, anger, grief, or panic can cause reality around her to distort. This is important because it ties her inner character arc to external conflict.

4. Divine Presence

Even when she is doing nothing, there is something “wrong” or overwhelming about her presence. Some people may feel awe, fear, pressure, or instinctive ease around her (due to her gentle nature)

5. Destruction by Scale

Kalyani is not dangerous because she knows many techniques. She is dangerous because the scale of what she can do is absurd. A small emotional slip could damage buildings, alter landscapes, or injure people unintentionally.

Weakness (IMPORTANT FOR STORY)

Not physical weakness, psychological

1. Confusion
2. Emotional overload
3. Moral conflict

When she doesn't understand what's “right,” her power becomes unstable

CHARACTER PROFILES

Name

Kalyani Hoshi

Age

16

Role

Main protagonist

Title / Symbolism

Her chosen surname, Hoshi, means “star,” symbolizing innocence, light, hope, and potential. This contrasts directly with her father’s title - and her FULL surname, The Fallen Star and Hoshikai respectively.

Personality

Kalyani is kind-hearted, curious, and emotionally sincere, but she is not socially adjusted. Because she did not grow up as an ordinary human, she often misunderstands normal behavior, relationships, and social cues. She studies people the way someone would study another species, yet her desire to connect is genuine.

She is:

1. gentle
2. observant
3. unintentionally funny
4. emotionally intense
5. protective of others
6. afraid of hurting people
7. secretly lonely

Despite her soft nature, there is always a sense that something immense and terrifying is sleeping beneath the surface.

Likes

1. children's media and cartoons
2. bright, cheerful things
3. observing human friendships
4. helping people
5. small acts of kindness
6. peaceful routines, being slow

Dislikes

1. cruelty
2. manipulation
3. being feared
4. loud conflict
5. reminders of her father
6. losing control

Internal Conflict

Kalyani fears that kindness may only be superficial, and that underneath it she is still fundamentally a monster. She wants to believe identity is shaped by choice, but her own power constantly challenges that belief.

External Conflict

She must live among humans without fully understanding them, while hiding her nature and preventing her powers from causing harm. As her connection to Earth grows, so does the danger of her true identity being exposed.

Narrative Function

Kalyani represents the central question of the story:
Can someone born from destruction choose compassion?

Name

En

Title

The Fallen Star

Role

Primary source of Kalyani's legacy; major antagonistic figure in flashbacks, history, and eventual confrontation

Presence in Story

En does not need to appear constantly at first. He should feel mythic. His presence can be built through:

1. stories
2. warnings
3. old records
4. visions or flashbacks
5. Kalyani's memories
6. the reaction of others when his title is mentioned

That makes him feel bigger than life.

Personality

En is calm, proud, cruel, and absolute in his worldview. He is not chaotic in the sense of being loud or reckless. He is terrifying because he is composed. He believes that power is the highest truth and sees compassion as a weakness invented by lesser beings.

He does not rage often. He does not need to. His confidence is so absolute that he treats destruction like a natural consequence of his existence.

Philosophy

En believes:

1. strength is the only true constant
2. morality is a human construct, not a universal law
3. destruction and creation are equal, and neither is inherently wrong
4. attachment is unnecessary, not forbidden
5. gods exist beyond human definitions of “good” and “evil”

He does not see Kalyani’s kindness as wrong; just illogical and ultimately unsustainable.

Relationship to Kalyani

En is not an abusive or hateful parent. He raised Kalyani himself and acknowledges her strength without hesitation.

He may:

1. see her as his successor, regardless of her choices
2. be curious about her kindness rather than angered by it
3. allow her independence, believing she will eventually come to understand his perspective
4. test her decisions to observe their outcomes
5. correct her only when she fails due to hesitation, not because she chooses kindness

Their relationship is not built on conflict, but on difference.

Kalyani does not reject him, and En does not reject her—they simply do not agree on how power should be used.

Symbolism

En, as The Fallen Star, represents a being who exists beyond morality; someone who has shed all need for justification, judgment, or restraint.

He is not “corrupted” in his own view.

He is what remains when nothing is held back.

In contrast, Kalyani represents restraint, empathy, and choice.

Where he is absolute, she is selective.

Narrative Function

En is not a traditional antagonist.

He represents:

- the natural extreme of Kalyani's power
- a worldview that does not rely on morality
- a future where nothing is restrained or softened

He is not what Kalyani is destined to become, but what she could become if she stopped choosing kindness.

Father-Daughter Contrast

This contrast is central to the story's emotional and philosophical depth. Rather than opposing each other as good and evil, Kalyani and En represent two fundamentally different approaches to power and existence.

Kalyani Hoshi

1. star as warmth, light, and presence
2. kindness as a conscious, consistent choice
3. power used with care and restraint
4. seeks connection and understanding
5. finds value in human emotion and relationships
6. chooses to protect, even when unnecessary

En, The Fallen Star

1. star as something distant, immense, and untouchable
2. power used freely, without need for justification
3. sees restraint as optional, not necessary
4. exists independently, without reliance on others
5. observes rather than participates in human emotion
6. does not seek connection, but does not reject it either

Core Contrast

Kalyani and En are not opposites in nature, but in choice. They share the same origin, the same power, and the same understanding of the world. What separates them is how they choose to exist within it.

Kalyani chooses to care.

En chooses not to.

This difference forms the emotional foundation of the story, showing that identity is not defined by origin or ability, but by the decisions one continues to make.

Optional Story Angle: Government Threat

A government or organization could:

- detect Kalyani's existence
- view her as a living weapon
- fear a second "Fallen Star" event
- want to control, study, seal, or destroy her

This adds another layer: Kalyani is not only afraid of becoming a monster. Humans may decide she already is one.

STORYBOARD

Opening Scene

Page 1

Panel 1 (Wide shot)

A quiet street. Early morning / soft lighting.
Kalyani is crouched in the middle of the road.

Panel 2 (Closer shot)

A small kitten lies in front of her. Its leg is twisted, clearly injured.

Panel 3 (Close-up - Kalyani's face)

She's staring at it, brows slightly furrowed.

Panel 4 (Close-up - her hand hovering over the kitten)

She doesn't touch it yet.

Small dialogue (soft):

"...that looks like it hurts."

Panel 5 (Closer - her expression softens)

She pouts slightly. Eyes glassy.

YES, a little teary, not dramatic crying, just: she feels it, but doesn't fully understand it

Page 2

Panel 1 (Background blur, motion lines)

A truck speeding toward her.

SFX: HOOOOONK

Driver (off-panel):

"HEY!!! MOVE!!!"

Panel 2 (Close-up - Kalyani)

She looks up.

No panic.

Just:

mild confusion

Panel 3 (Impact panel - NO CLEAR VISUAL)

Just white / black / abstract

SFX: CRRRAAAASH

Page 3

Panel 1 (Quiet panel)

Silence.

Kalyani is standing now.

She's holding the kitten gently.

Panel 2 (Close-up - kitten)

Its leg is completely healed.

Panel 3 (Wide shot behind her)

The truck is completely destroyed. Crushed. Twisted metal.

The driver is stumbling away, terrified.

Panel 4 (Kalyani turns slightly, looking at the wreck)

Tilted head.

“...?”

Page 4

Panel 1 (Close-up - Kalyani)

Immediately loses interest in the truck.

Panel 2 (She lifts the kitten slightly)

Her face LIGHTS UP. “You’re okay!!”

Panel 3 (snuggling the kitten)

“Oh-hello... hi... hi...”

Panel 4 (walking away casually)

Still hugging it

The destroyed truck in the background.

Final tiny dialogue:

“You’re soft.”

FINAL TOUCH - Page 5

Black page + white text

“Some beings destroy without meaning to.” OR “She did not notice the difference.”